Your insurance will only pay for services that it deems "reasonable and necessary". If your insurance carrier determines that a particular service is not "reasonable and necessary" by your private physician, they will deny payment. Further, if your service requires pre-authorization or a referral and you fail to provide the same, your insurance will deny payment.
Therefore, you must agree in advance of this service that should your insurance carrier fail to pay for this service, which was ordered in good faith, you will be totally responsible for payment.
ASSIGNMENT OF BENEFITS:
